

Business Ethics for the Massage Professional

Overview:

- One day workshop from 9:00am – 4:00pm
- Satisfies the six CE requirement for Ethics per NCBTMB/This also satisfies the two hour “Roles and Boundaries” requirement
- Fee: $125.00
- Certificate in Ethics awarded

This Interactive learning experience will include/cover:

- Role playing with a partner regarding the client/therapist relationship
- How to handle the first phone call from the client
- How to handle questions during the session
- How to recognize and manage client/therapist grey areas
- Going over the health form tactfully
- How to handle referral/ client confidentiality issues
- How to handle client/therapist confidentiality issues
- The importance of journaling at the end of each and every day
- Ethical behavior and conduct between massage professionals
- NCBTMB Scope of Practice guidelines

This course is designed to be an interactive, expressive, fun-filled experience. The best way to learn in my experience is to make the learning experience a natural, shared one. The ominous notion of Ethics need not be a text book learning experience. Role playing brings interaction amongst the participants where they can test out what they have just learned. These role playing segments test each participant as to how well they can handle some of the sticky situations we all face on a daily basis. We will all learn from each other while having fun in the process.

Lisa A. Gelberg is a graduate of the Connecticut Center for Massage Therapy (CCMT). She earned an Associate's Degree in Arts from Dean College in Franklin, MA. She brings with her 10 plus years of massage experience and is the owner of “Massage Therapy for Women”, located in Rocky Hill, CT.

Lisa knew early on that she wanted to teach Business related courses for the massage professional. Almost immediately upon graduation from CCMT, she became a course assistant at CCMT. Then in the fall of 2001 she attended a 10 week teacher training course. From there, she went on to teach Business at CCMT and other local area schools. Currently, she compliments her women's only massage practice with teaching Pregnancy Massage and Business Ethics as a NCBTMB Approved Provider. Lisa resides in Wethersfield, CT with her husband, Steven and two sons, Ian and Liam.

Don't miss out on a great learning experience. I look forward to meeting you.
